

Amanda Cena, the daughter to the late Armando Cena and the late Inez L. Cena and also a daughter to Lansing, MI. Born and raised in Lansing's northside the youngest of 8 was taught by my Mom on how to sing at the age of 14.

It wasn't until I was 25 years old that I decided to take it a step further and push myself into the Tejano scene while living in San Antonio, Texas. However, being a single Mom of 2 and working 2 jobs made it difficult to begin a singing career.

I then decided to come back home and started singing for almost any event I could perform at. Shortly after, I met the late Tony "El Chayo" Cervantes who assisted me with getting my voice heard by doing voice overs and playing songs I had recorded at WKAR studios at Michigan State University.

In 2002 a contest took place at the Meridian Mall in Okemos, MI., where I auditioned to sing the National Anthem and won! I had the honor and pleasure to open up for the Harlem Globetrotters at MSU's Breslin Center in January 2002.

Since 2019, I was offered the position as the female backup singer for Lansing's Tejano Sound Band who is known throughout the Midwest, Texas and other states where Tejano music is alive and well!

I feel I am blessed beyond measure by God to have the ability to sing and more so that people love my style.

Blessings,

Amanda Cena
